The paragraph touching Lord Lyons, in the Army and Navy Gazets, is as follows: Lord Lyons returns by the Scotis to his post at Washington. It may be inferred that the government is not inclined to depart from the policy it has heretofore pursued in reference to the contest between the North and South, not from the fact that the conneils did not sit, but from the sministers individually and from the speeches of Sir G. Levis and Mr. not from the fact that the councils did not ait, but from the ministers individually and from the speeches of Sir G. Lewis and Mr. Gladatone and the written clucidations of his meaning, which have been published by the latter, but Lord Lyons may nevertheless be able to represent to the American government the views of the British ministers as to estain contingencies, and to indicate certain changes of policy which may be forced on them by the advant of certain events.

We have a cold, winery, blowing day. There is but little news from any point. It is reported here that Gen. Femberton has been placed in command of the Mississippi department, to which he was assigned some weeks ago in anticipation of Van Dorn moving into Tennessee, Ilinois and Kentacky. It is also reported by a geutieman living some twenty miles from Momphis, on the Figeon Roost road, that the confederatos have been for several days removing all their valu-ables from Holly Springs, preparatory to oras-

Gen. Prentias this morning received a dispart from Gen. Halleck, tendering him his choice of the confinish of any brigade in the service. This is both guarrons and deserved, and we hope will be followed in due time by a major general's commission, which Frentias also deserves as much as any man who has been lately than boored, and far more than some who have proved themselves matter for the place.

The general, we understand, will probably take brigade under Roscrava. He is a figuring man, and that is the kind of work suited to the temperament of Gen. Frentias.

But there must be no delay. The leaders of that party that has just won a victory, infatuated by the success that has crowned their efforts, but forgetful of the means by which that success was achieved, are already talking of a meeting of the next Congress, to put the President under its illegal and irresponsible control. We hear already that the Governor elect of New York proposes, in a certain contingency, to call home the troops of that State, and, if necessary, turn their bayonets upon loyal men and the Federal Government at home. And of the disloyality of the Woods and the Richardsons we can predict nothing that they will not bring to pass. To circumvent the plotters, to nip disloyal endesvor in the bod, to restore the waning confidence to the Federal authority as now wielded, courage for the right, at least equal to a traitor's dating for the success of wrong, must be exhibited. BEFORE UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER HOYNE.—An amusing case was heardlysterday before the United States Commissioner, growing out of a strange similarity of names,
Brown vs. Brown. The plaintiff, one James Brown, complained of the defendant, another James Brown, that he had taken a letter out of the post office, which was the property of Vassers. The Republican Representatives from the 60th District Declared Elected. The votes of the recent County Election, for county and legislative officers, were officially canvassed on Saturday, at the County Clerk, selected Justice L. H. Davis and Judge Bradwell, exegited, a Justice of the Peace, to act with him and constitute the board of canvassers. No difficulty or dispute of any consequence occurred, until the returns from the second precinct of the fourth ward were opened and examined. The votes of the recent County Election, fo amined.

It did not appear from these that the judges of election, in that precluct, had been swors, prior to their opening the polls and receiving he votes.
Objection was, at once, made to the re-Objection was, at once, made to the re-turns being received and counted in by the canvassers. The board suspended action on them until the remaining returns of the legis-istive district were canvassed and counted. Very claborate arguments were then heard by the board upon this irregularity, and the board adjourned for dinner, and on coming together again, the whole matter was further discussed. Means. Of Colonel Van Arman it is hardly necessary to speak. As a lawyer he enjoys a prominence second to few in the Western country. LINE OFFICERS powers of amendment in this respect. The pith of the whole argument was, in fine, that the oath, certified, is made, by law, an essential part of the poll-book, and that it is as neces-sary it should appear there as that the list of voters, the certificate of the judges, or any other part of the returns should appear on the face of them—and, that this oath not appear-ing to have been administered, the poll-book is incomplete as a document which the board can receive and act upon. The evidence of inence second to few in the Western country and many of his efforts, especially in the Jumpertz and Burch cases, rank among the most powerful pleasings at the Western bar. He has seen service before, having been in the Mexican war, where he acquitted himsel with great bravery, and gained honorable dis-tinction. As a tactician and disciplinarian, he has few superiors, and under his able guid-ance the regiment must achieve success. Lieutenast Colonel Eidridge is a young and well known lawyer of this city, and makes a popular and successful officer. Hop. Cassius M. Clay was greeted with a large audience at Bryan Hall on Saturday evaning upon the occasion of his lecture: The Proclamation. The speaker throughout was greeted with bearty applause. Our limited epace will only allow of a brin abstract.

After an appropriate and eloquent introduction, Mr. Clay admitted that we had not realized the fruits, from the enormous sacrifice of lives and expenditure of money, that we had a right to expect. But if there were any mistake on the part of the Commander-in-Cilef, it was that he has exercised too much Cilef, it was that be has exercised too much leniency and forbearance towards the rebels. He certainly has made one grand mistake, and he and all loyal men now see it. That mistake was in attempting to put down slavery with one hand and to uphold it with the other. The Democrats in the recent canvass have made it a strong point against the Administration that this war has not been more vigorosaly prosecuted, and argue that if they had had the reins of government, it would have been very different. Now the facts are, that the Pradicent has been awayed and influenced by there advice. Throughout the whols war then has been a prevailing attempt on the part of the officers to maintain slavery. When the samy has once passed on, you are left help-delays, and ill-chosen incentives to volun-tering that have cast a reproach upon the system of the draft. The Government should, by its very promptness in resor in the field, have made the relation of the welcome. We have only wrought injury, detention, and a heavy added burden to the public by the plan of bounties. It has been illy received by our brave volunteers who went forward without pay. It has semed like a premium for hauging back.

But far the worst evil is the stigma allowed to grow against the lot of the drafted and, since it is inevitable, and so it has always seemed to us, that to drafthas always seemed to us, that to drafting we must come at last. The small speck of disturbance announced in various parts of the country are due to this mismanagement. These must be promptly put down, and the draft be perfected. If Gov. Salonea in Wisconsin needs a brigade to carry the system by bayonet and ball in any malcontent neighborhood, those soldiers will be well employed in heaching home rebells that the State must be obeyed. The world will hearn from this war, that the Rapublic has the power to command the lives and service of het citizens, and that her hand is stronger than that of despotism, in he own defence.
